

Redemptorist Schools of Baton Rouge

The Redemptorist Schools of Baton Rouge form a Catholic community building leaders for the 21st century

Cody is Redemptorist. Having come to Redemptorist in his sophomore year, and he is now a senior looking forward to graduating next spring. Cody plays baseball, shows school spirit as a fan in the bleachers at football games, and grabbed my heart as the new Administrative Head of Schools at Redemptorist this fall when he joined me and a team of student ambassadors at one of our in-home admissions outreach events around the greater Baton Rouge area. These events are designed to familiarize prospective students and their families with all that Redemptorist has to offer – family spirit; academic excellence; spiritual formation; broad diversity along economic, racial, academic, geographic, and other lines; and more – by letting them hear directly from our students the impact Redemptorist has had on their lives. When I asked each student to share what has meant the most to them about being part of Redemptorist, Cody captured it with a simple story. He talked about his friend Richard, a student in the diocesan special education program long-housed on the Redemptorist campus. Last year, Richard was mainstreamed into Cody's Theology class, and the two became friends. Even though they have never had another class together, their friendship has endured so that they talk every day when they pass each other on campus. It would be easy for Cody to say that through three years at Redemptorist he has felt good about being a friend to Richard. Instead, Cody said, "Knowing Richard has changed my life, and I'll always carry his friendship with me."

Cody is Redemptorist, as for over 60 years students have been able to say, "I am Redemptorist!" with their own stories of what makes their time here so meaningful in their lives. Indeed, since its founding in 1947, Redemptorist has transformed lives to transform the world. Following are the Annual Report postings of donor activity to Redemptorist that has helped continue that great tradition in the lives of our students today. Because Redemptorist did not previously publish an annual report for the 2009-2010 year, we are including that here along with last year's donor activity for 2010-2011.

Apart from the requirement as a nonprofit entity that we provide donor information, it is one more way for us to acknowledge the generosity of our parents, faculty/staff, Board, alumni, and friends of Redemptorist without whose kindness we could not operate. Typical of Catholic and private schools today where tuition covers only a portion of the true cost to educate our students, Redemptorist relies on financial donations and in-kind-gifts from these stakeholder groups most vested in our continued success to be able to fully fund our annual operating budget. In addition, at a time when demonstrated financial need exceeds several times over our ability to provide financial assistance that helps draw and retain quality students from financially-challenged families, gifts supporting tuition assistance and named scholarship funds help make the difference in providing students with a Redemptorist education that changes lives.

We offer our thanks to our donors for your great support.

Peace,

Brian R. Menard
